DEDICATION

A school is many things--it is the things you see with your eyes, the things you hear with your ears, the things you learn with your mind, the things you feel with your heart.

A school is timber and beams and brick and mortar and windows and doors which make up the physical plant of the greatest institution of America.

A school is the citizens of the community and the State, who have planned and dreamed and worked and prayed for the future of their children.

A school is the administration from the state level to the local level, made up of public-spirited, far-seeing individuals who know that the strength of America lies in her young and who strive unceasingly to modify, improve, and strengthen our education system.

A school is the unswerving devotion and self-forgetting service of dedicated teachers who mold and train the characters of their students according to the best that they know--the sublime literature, the awesome science, the record of man's achievements, the superb music, the high ethical accomplishments of the ages.

A school is the children who gather within her walls, eagerly or reluctantly awaiting the dispensing of knowledge. It is their joys and achievements, their sorrows and disappointments; it is the best years of their youth.

Above all, my friends--a school is love. It encompasses the love of statesmen for their country, the love of parents for their children, the love of teachers for their charges, the love of children for their school, their parents, their teachers, and each other. It is a self-forgetful love, born of devotion and respect for the more than fifty years of service rendered by our beloved Pilot Mountain School. All these things, and more, our school has been to us and to all who have gone out from her portals.

It is with sincere love and devotion that we humbly and pridefully dedicate the 1961 edition of Knob Whispers to the PILOT MOUNTAIN SCHOOL.

FACULTY

All too few realize that the faculty of a school is truly the force which guides the school spirit. Furthermore, by the teachers, students' dreams are shaped until they become tangible things.

Too often we forget that teachers have dreams of their own--dreams for the eventual success of all that are around them. Through their dreams for us, we are made capable of accepting our mature responsibilities.

A DAY WITH THE FACULTY

Mrs. Chilton and Mrs. Ridenhour choose some good books for their English classes.

Miss Smith sees that we have the best books on our library shelves.

The students in Mr. Wilburn's classes study everything from botany to carpentry.

Lectures and experiments are included in Mrs. Hill's science classes.

Mr. Diamont believes that our students should be physically fit as well as mentally alert.

CLASSES

The halls of Pilot Mountain High School ring with the voices of freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors every morning at 8:30 as the school day begins. The freshmen fill their minds with visions of being sophomores. The sophomores dream of passing the halfway mark of their high school years to become juniors. The juniors eagerly anticipate the role of seniors. The seniors with their dreams of graduation concentrate on passing senior English and history.

On the following pages are your classmates who have helped to formulate your dreams while at Pilot Mountain High School.

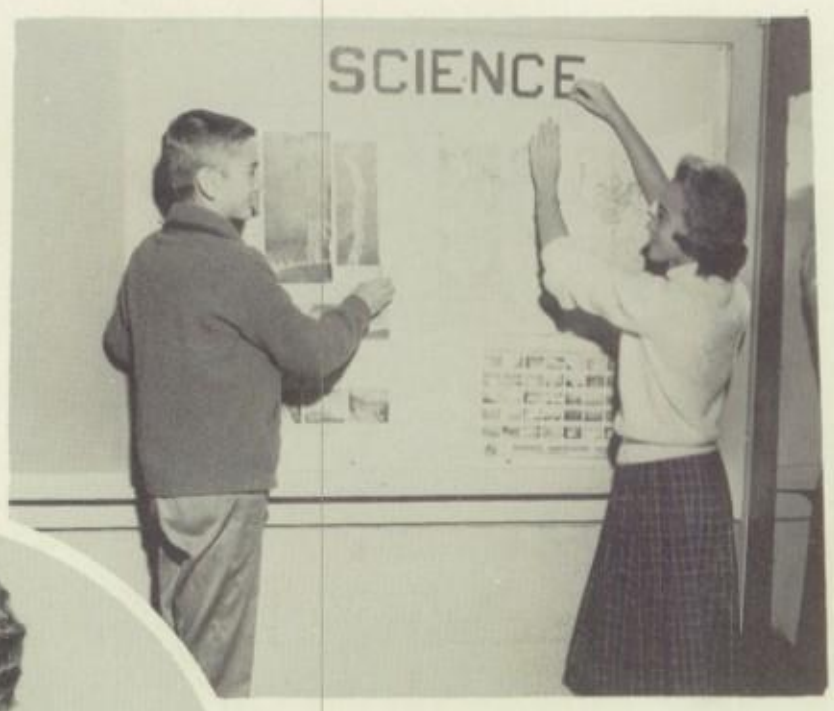
A DAY WITH THE FRESHMEN

It takes four to make a cake when you're just learning.

Science can be anything from planets to frogs.



"Will Mom be pleased with this report card?"

Freshmen like the wide selection of books from which to choose.

Building a pyramid in the girls' health class is not unusual for freshmen.

ACTIVITIES

In a well-rounded school, classroom and extra-curricular activities contribute to the total learning process. Training in leadership and learning the importance of cooperation are essential factors in education. Our organizations, through their programs, service to others, and recreational activities, give us lessons from experience for our world of tomorrow.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Our Student Government, the main governing body of our school, is composed of representatives elected from each class, with officers elected by the entire student body.

The excitement begins early in May when campaigns for offices begin. Candidates for office are nominated by homeroom students. After a week of vigorous campaigning, elections are held and new officers are installed. However, these do not take office officially until the following fall.

There are two representatives from each class.

Through the Student Council, the student body is able to participate in the management of school affairs; and by doing so, the student is preparing himself to accept any challenge the world may present.

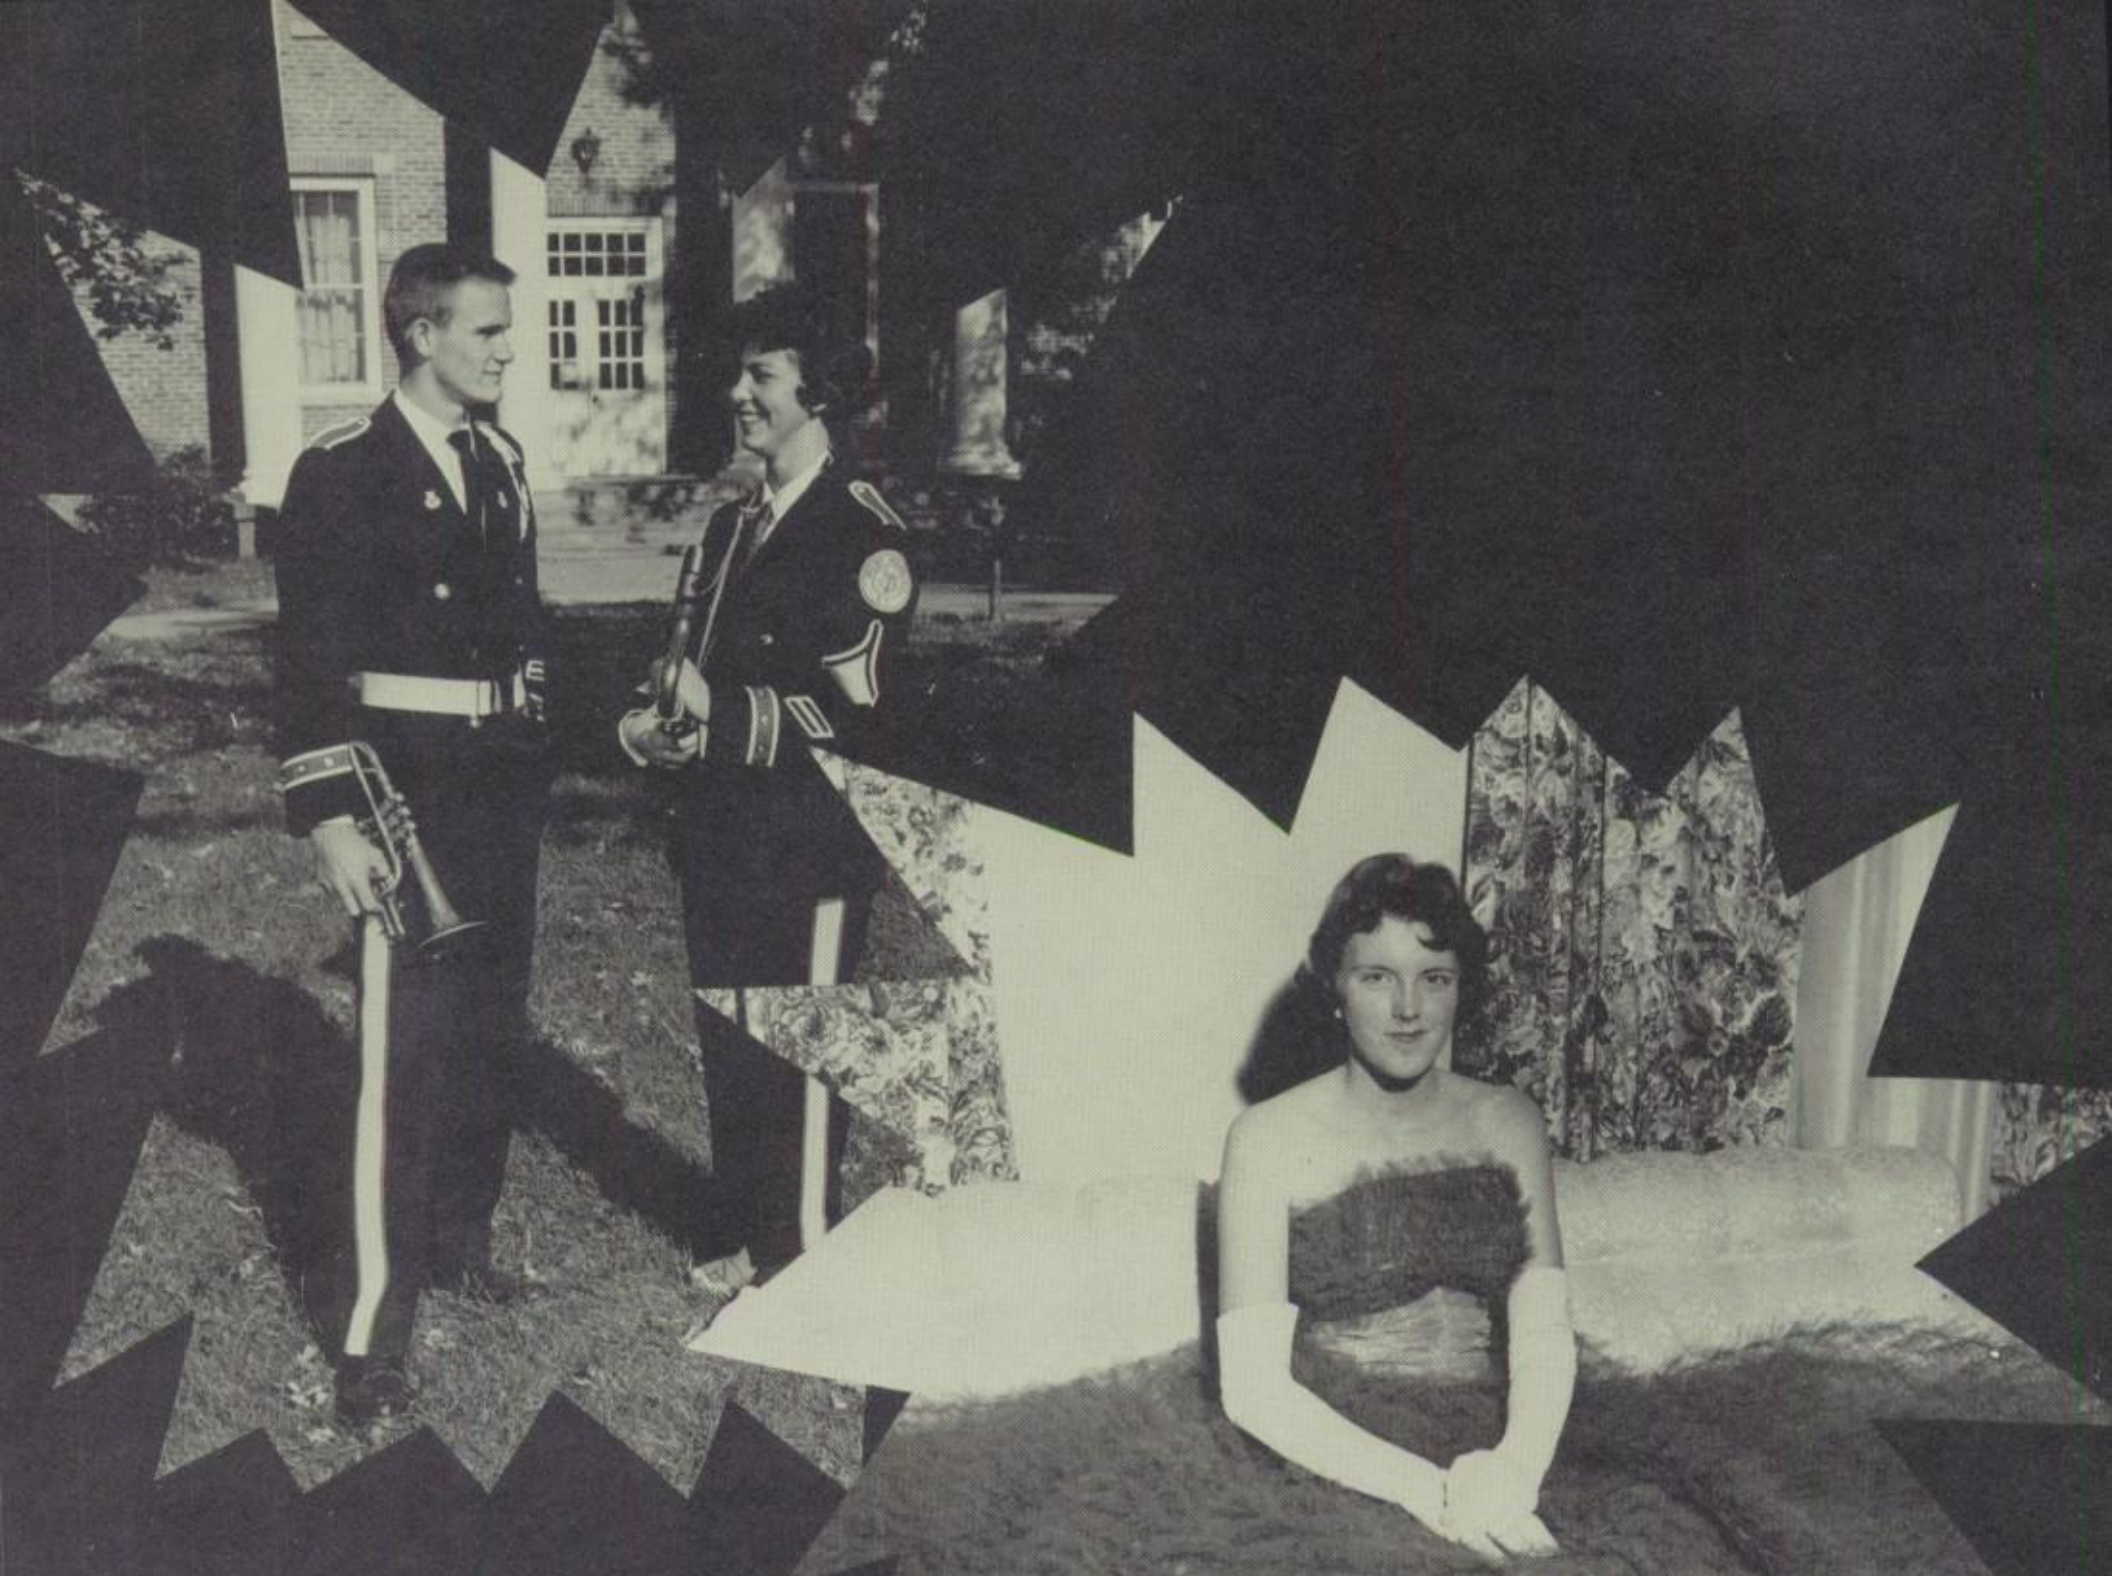
MIXED CHORUS

The Mixed Chorus, under the direction of Mr. Jerry Jones and Mrs. Ruth Ridenhour, is composed of eighty-four members. They have presented some very enjoyable programs for school functions throughout the year.



FEATURES

Special events happen throughout the year which are worthy of being recorded. We have tried to capture highlights from most of these for your yearbook. It is with pleasure that we record the scholastic attainment and the honors won by members of the Senior Class. Whether it be Senior Superlatives, Girls' and Boys' State Representatives, Marshals, or Junior-Senior Banquet, all these contribute to the enjoyment of our school life.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET

Music, dancing, guests, and food!

But the Queen would not give her baby to the little man.

"It's a Grand Night for Singing!"

"Once upon a time long ago . . ."

Our barbershop quartet tuned up to "I'm Getting Married in the Morning!"

SENIOR TRIP

ATHLETICS

They're full of personality and energy and stuff,
And when they prance before us,
we can't yell loud enough.
If ever we are losing and the situation's dim,
We can count on our cheerleaders
for an extra dose of vim.

ELEMENTARY

Our elementary studies play an important part in education by developing character and school spirit. These studies are one of the richest experiences of our school life because of our association with our classmates. Our activities in the elementary grades are some of the most cherished memories we have at school. The elementary curriculum develops in each student the ability to communicate effectively through reading, writing, speaking and listening.

JUNIOR BETA CLUB

We realize the vital role played by the parents and teachers in our school. Nothing to them is too small or too large, too important or too insignificant, when it means better schools for their children and their students.

Our Parent Teachers Association is an active organization and many worthwhile objectives have been attained by this group.

For the many things you, the parents and teachers, have done for us - the sacrifices you have made for us and the interest you have taken in us - we are deeply grateful.
